Report Reveals Colombian Peace Agreement’s Gender Perspective Is Innovative, But Seeing Delays

A new Kroc Institute report published on October 31 reveals that stipulations in Colombia’s Peace Accord centered on gender equality and women’s rights are being implemented, but more slowly than other provisions within the accord. More »

George Lopez Testifies at Human Rights Commission Hearing

On Wednesday, November 14, Professor George A. Lopez testified at a Washington D.C. hearing of the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission. The hearing focused on reducing the risk of mass atrocities worldwide. More »

Doctoral Students Publish New Research in Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists

Ukraine is on the brink of war-related environmental disaster according to new research published by two Kroc Institute doctoral students. Kristina Hook and Richard Marcantonio, both doctoral candidates in anthropology and peace studies, published their research in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists on October 16. More »

Racism, Xenophobia and the Rise of

Subscribe to our email list
Navigating the Call of Justice

Tuesday, November 27
4 p.m., Hesburgh Center for International Studies Auditorium

Join the Kroc Institute for a conversation on the strategies for understanding, naming, and confronting the rise in far-right populism in the United States and abroad. Panelists include David Anderson Hooker, Rory McVeigh, Ann Mische, and Atalia Omer, and Ernesto Verdeja (moderator). More »

The UN Genocide Convention at 70: Historical Origins, Future Challenges

Monday, December 3
3:30 p.m., C103 Hesburgh Center for International Studies

The Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, a resolution defining genocide in legal terms, was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on December 9, 1948. Seventy years later, what can we learn about the impact of this resolution and the challenges it now faces? Panelists include Alejandra Gonza, Ernesto Verdeja and Jennifer Mason McAward (moderator). This event is co-sponsored with the Klau Center for Civil and Human Rights and the Institute for the Study of Genocide. More »

Now accepting applications for Visiting Research Fellowships. Apply by December 15.

The Kroc Institute is currently accepting applications for four visiting research fellows for the 2019-20 academic year. Priority research areas include:

- Gender and Conflict/Peacebuilding
- Nuclear Disarmament, Sustainable Development, and Climate Change
- International Mediation
- Peace Studies

Apply Now »
graduate programs in peace studies.
Apply by December 15:

Peace Studies Dual Degree Ph.D. Program »
Keough School Master of Global Affairs, International Peace Studies Concentration »

---

Faculty in the News

David Cortright, Director of Policy Studies and the Peace Accords Matrix, wrote The Nation article "The Peace Movement Won the INF Treaty. We Must Fight to Preserve It."

---

Madhav Joshi, Research Associate Professor and Associate Director of the Peace Accords Matrix, and Matthew Hauenstein, Peace Accords Matrix Post-Doctoral Associate, wrote The Washington Post article "What are the prospects for South Sudan's new peace agreement? Here are the critical next steps."

---

Ann Mische, Associate Professor of Sociology and Peace Studies, published the Mobilizing Ideas blog article "Protest, Anti-Partisanship, and the Trajectory of Democratic Crisis in Brazil."

---

Patrick Regan, Professor of Political Science and Peace Studies, was quoted in the Scientific American article "Index Ranks U.S. Cities Based on Climate Risk and Readiness."

---

The Kroc Institute conducts research on strategies for sustainable peace and supports undergraduate, master's, and Ph.D. students in peace studies.

---

Subscribe to our email list

https://t.e2ma.net/webview/gvcpo/10dc86fc649664f92926f6ea1623fd06